Survival through Oppression

Oppression and national crisis forced her sacrifice to personal life and education for survival.

Hanbok

Korean traditional costume, Hanbok, has been around for thousands of years of Korean history. Unlike western garments, Hanbok is a two-dimensional fabric by itself, but on the person, it becomes the three-dimensional organic lines.

Park Yi-gyun

She was born in 1935 when Korea was colonized by Japan, she has experienced the horrible war fighting for freedom and democracy.

Growing up in the countryside, her entire life is about farming.

Marriage at a young age and having five children caused my grandmother her entire youth.

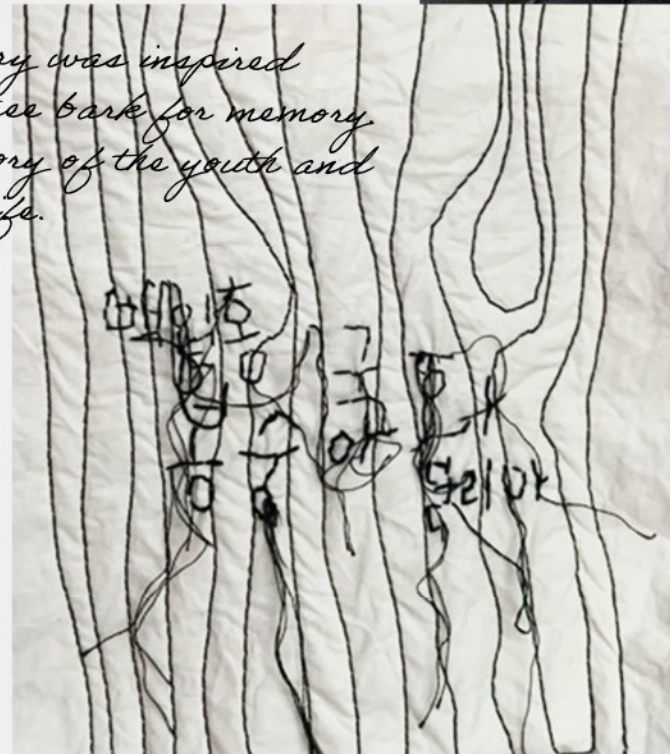

The Nostalgia of the Tree

People always wanted to be bloom in their life,
However, she became the tree for the family
dreaming about flowers.

Handwriting Embroidery

Handwriting embroidery was inspired by the carving on the tree bark for memory.
It represents the memory of the youth and what she loves in her life.

Applique of Balsam Flower

Applique is inspired by the pressed flower art,
the technique preserves the flower longer with its beauty.

Applique of Balsam, her favorite flower, is a way of preserving the memory and beauty of the youth of her life.

Hand Embroidery Bark textile

On the bedding layer fabric, embroidery with hands gives the idea of bark pattern and textile on the garments.

Lady of Countryside

To survive in the countryside, she lived her entire life as a farmer and housekeeper as those were the only options available to her.

Raffia Crochet

*Most of the farming tools that she used were made out of straw braids.
Bowl, storage, and basket for harvesting.
These tools tell the story of who she was and how she lived*

Raffia Crochet represents the textures of tools she used.

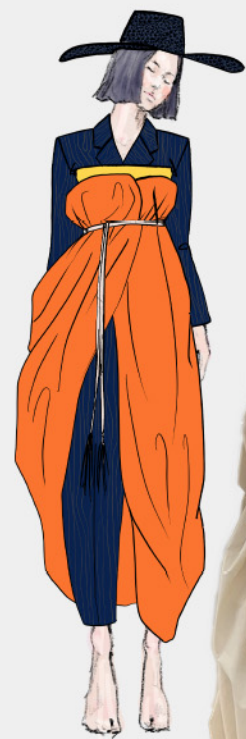

Bojagi Pattern

*Bojagi is a Korean traditional textile pattern.
As the fabric was rare and expensive, people collected scraps to create a new textile.*

It was used for many purposes such as bags, wrapping fabric, food cover and sometimes furniture covers.

Changes of Drapes

Draping of the wrap dress on top of the suit was changed.

Changed the way of approaching to the design from styling to focusing on the garment by itself.

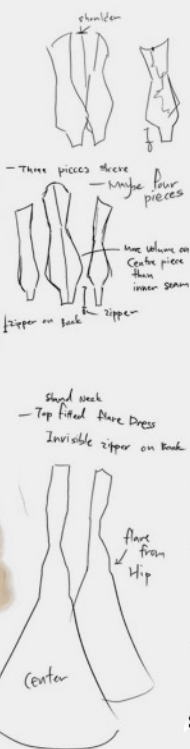

Editing Design

All the looks and details cannot be on the collection for cohesiveness

Process Development

The collection has been developed continuously for cohesiveness.

Challenging Tradition

Challenging the way of design and illustration using the Traditional method to create a contemporary collection.
